Another third-generation star making his way to the Majors, Mike Bell is the son of former Rangers third baseman Buddy Bell and the grandson of Gus Bell. Not surprisingly, Mike is a good fielder who led Gulf Coast League third basemen in total chances and assists in 1993. He also led the league in hits and extra-base hits.

Super-speedy outfielder Johnny Damon helped Class-A Rockford lead all minor league teams in steals with 239 in 1993. Damon ranked second on the loop in steals and finished just out of the top 10 in batting average. His 13 triples led the league and represented the fifth-best total in all of minor league baseball.

"George asked where I wanted to take the picture. I said in front of the dugout. He said no way, because the fans will start screaming. I had never thought about this. We shot out of view of his admirers on the dugout steps."

GEORGE BRETT

George Brett and Walter looss Jr. are proof that quality performers will stand the test of time. While the work of looss Jr. has spanned a generation, Brett has done likewise. He's one of the few to have spent his entire career with one club and highlights of Brett's career would fill quite a few scrapbooks. He has won batting titles in three different decades, has hit memorable home runs in three League Championship Series, won a World Series Championship in 1985 and reached the 3,000-hit club in 1992.
